Many Calls for the Doctor.

There were more calls made for the ambulance yesterday than could be answered. The first summons came in the almshouse office by telephone, at 7:30 o'clock in the morning, from the Richmond and Alleghamy Railrond shops, where a man had drunk too much ice-water and had a case of cramp colic in consequence. At 9 o'clock a man fell through a hatchway on Fifteenth street, between Main and Cary. He was carried to his home, on Charch Hill, in the ambulance. At 11:40 a man at Whitehurst & Owens' factory received an injury in the groin. He was relieved and carried to his residence. Twenty-sixth and Venable streets. At noon a man near the Chesapeake and Ohio depot was suffering from asthma. The doctor in charge relieved him and carried him home, Twenty-first and Marshall. At 6 o'clock in the evening another man drank too much lee-water. Another case of colic. Carried home, Third and Cary.

Mr. J. B. Lambert, of this city, received yesterday a letter from his friend, R. C. Brown, of New York, in which the latter says: "Hope you and our good friends down there do not think that we are all cranks up here like that Shepard."

The meeting was conducted in a profound-y secret manner. Members of the press were specially excluded, and it was decided at he meeting that no action of the board hould be given out for publication under my circumstances until it became the deasure of Mr. Massey, who had some other matters to arrange. Yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock the delegates to the convention were taken in charge by friends of this city and driven around in carriages. They visited all the points of interest, and when they returned were inexhaustive in their praise of Richmond's beauty, the scenery, and the historial volute. leasure of Mr. Massey, who had some anor matters to arrange. Attorney-General Scott bitterly opposed by change, but Mr. Massey warmly advoated several, all of which, it seems, were receily in favor of the great book trust, hich, it appears, has to a great extent trimphed. The Governor, to a certain degree soperated with Mr. Massey in his advocy of a change, and in consequence ereof several divergences from the old st were made. All the changes that occur re from non-trust to trust books.

Mr. M. Stein and his band rendered a great many musical selections with fine effect, Professor Stein using his baton with his usual ability. Mr. Jacob Reinhardt accompanied the singers on the piano in his matchless manner, and contributed ne little to the fine vocalization. "It has been stated, and by some believed, that the distinguished-looking officer who led the small band of Mosby's veterans in the procession on the 29th was the Colonel himself. This is a mistake. That officer was Captain Robert S. Walker, of Madison county, Va., formerly Captain of Company B. Mosby's command, about whom some thrilling stories might be told. From among many brave and dashing men he was raised at once from the ranks to the command of his company, and soon after put at the head After the supper, which was a very ex-tensive one, had been partaken of, speeches were made by Messrs. Sanger, Goodhart, Abraham, and others of the visitors. A letter was read from Mayor Ellyson stating that a previous engagement kept him from attending and presenting his sincere regret a hundred times for such promotion. Captain Walker soon won the unqualified confidence of his men, not only by his personal courage, but skilful management in fight. Colonel Mosby trusted him in any emergency, and in hand to hand combat, as was often the case, he was an 'honor to his country and a terror to his foe." It is impossible to do justice to such a career in a brief notice, which is only intended to correct a natural mistake, as, indeed, the appearance of Captain Walker under his soft grav hat, with long, black plume, is not unlike that of Colonel Mosby.
